

Listing of Differences Between 2007 Fire Code and 1997 Fire Code

This table identifies records where text in the 2007 Fire Code (O.Reg.213/07) is different from the 1997 Fire Code (O.Reg.388/97 including amendments up to O.Reg.144/06). The following categories of changes are listed:

Technical Change:	New or significantly revised code text. This may include renumbering or relocation of the provision.
OB-code:	New text to support the Objective-Based format of the 2007 Fire Code that provides for alternative solutions to technical requirements where specified.
Harmonization:	Minor revisions to harmonize code text with parallel provisions in the model National Fire Code of Canada.
Editorial:	Identifies code records where text has been revised to provide greater clarity, to correspond with other changes (such as defined terms), due to reorganization of the code or for consistency of code language. Only more significant editorial revisions are listed here. Editorial changes may also include renumbering or relocation of code provisions.
Renumbering:	Identifies code records that have been renumbered as a consequence of other revisions or deletions but where the code text is otherwise unchanged. In some cases renumbering means relocation to a different Part or Division of the code.

Every effort has been made to provide an accurate listing, however, as the 2007 Fire Code is a complete new edition, there are other minor editorial changes that are too numerous to list. For example, corrections have been made for abbreviated terms, names of standards, cross-references that have undergone renumbering and many similar edits. Records that have undergone only these minor corrections are not included in the table.

Please report any problems with this document to the attention of Fire Safety Standards Section through the Office of the Fire Marshal website at: <http://www.ofm.gov.on.ca/english/feedback.asp>
